

ABSTRACT

The synthesis and study of biological activity of a series of new molecules with potential antimicrobial activity are described. The molecules are bicyclic carbohydrates, based on furanose sugars. Their antimicrobial activity against viruses is demonstrated, next to 5 cytostatic effects. Significantly, a high and selective activity against Cytomegalovirus was observed.